THANK YOU FROM CHERNOBYL'S CHILDREN OXFORDSHIRE & SOUTH WARWICKSHIRE

On behalf of the children, I would like to thank everyone involved in the recent Oxhill to Paris Cycle Ride which raised a magnificent £674.42 (including Gift Aid). Despite some adverse weather conditions (and probably a little pain!), Vanessa, Mike, Liz, Brian, Hugh and Steve all finished in high spirits and hopefully enjoyed themselves along the way. Thanks also to Derek, their support driver and to everybody who encouraged them and donated to this charity. Most of the children have never ridden a bicycle before their visit to England and I'm sure that they will be amazed when I tell them about journey.

NATURE NOTES

November 2nd is All Soul's Day or Soulmass when "Tindle" bonfires were burnt to light souls out of Purgatory. "In many counties there was an old custom at Funerals to hire poor people who were to take upon them all the Sins of the party deceased. The manner was that when a Corpse was brought out of the house and laid on the Bier; a loaf of bread was brought out and delivered to the Sin-eater over the corpse, as also a Mazer-bowl full of beer, which he was to drink up, and sixpence in money, in consideration whereof he took upon him all the Sins of the Defunct, and freed him (or her) from walking after they were dead." John Aubrey, 1688

I was recently working at a large 1930s house set in large grounds with many shrubs and mature trees close to the house – but not one house sparrow – not one! The owner said he had been there six years and had never seen one. Nationally they are on the decline, but not in Oxhill. I think here in the village we host a very large population. In my garden we have a constant group of approximately 20, most of which nest in the garden and under the eaves. I know that from talking to people in the village that similar numbers are present at the majority of properties. The hard winter seemingly had little effect on their numbers and I estimate we must have several hundred in the village.

I have also noticed we have good populations of all the Tit family and this year even coal-tits. The long-tailed tits have done well this summer and the other day I noted about 15 chattering and flitting through the garden. Blackbirds in some cases had, I think, three broods, and I saw thrushes early in the year, but not so many recently; I'm not sure why. I have seen the odd bullfinch and a few chaffinches, but virtually no greenfinches – which have been severely hit by a disease similar to E-coli called Trichomonosis.

It is actually a parasite and was first observed in greenfinches and chaffinches in 2005. Since 2005 the finch population has declined by 30%. The parasite causes lesions in the throat, making the bird unable to swallow, so it finds very difficult to eat and drink. It also causes it to regurgitate and other birds will then pick up this food. If you see a finch that is fluffed up, lethargic, looking wet around the bill, and not moving about much, it is infected. If you find a sick or dead finch, please contact the BTO or RSPB. It is important, especially at this time of the year, to clean out all your feeders, give them a good wash and scrub with a vet-safe disinfectant, and follow up again in the spring.

A couple of weeks ago we were woken at sunrise by a cacophony of bird noise, a raucous shouting by jackdaws, crows and magpies in the birch trees opposite the house. We could see something lying in the road, obviously dead, and the birds were quarrelling over who was going to be first to tuck into breakfast. I went out to see what the fuss was, and saw a polecat, not a ferret, but a wild male polecat (Mustela putorius). It had been struck on the side of its head by a passing car – what are the odds on that in the early hours of a Sunday morning? It was a beautiful animal. It was once only found in Wales, but since the 1990s it has started to spread out into England. The scientific name alludes to the odour they give off from an anal scent gland, although I did not get a hint of a “whiff” from this chap. The name “beech martin” was often given to the polecat, but that name properly belongs to a quite distinct and non-British animal. Apparently polecats prefer to live in the proximity of farms and they feed mainly on rabbits, rodents, perching birds, frogs, carrion, insects and other small creatures. As far as I am aware, this is the first record for Oxhill. I have lived here for more than 40 years and I have never seen one; indeed I have never seen one anywhere. I would like to know if any of Oxhill’s farmers have seen one in or around their farms – if you have, could you please let me know.

The common cold seems to be rife this autumn, so remember: “Sneezing into the left hand is held to be unlucky, but sneezing to the right is prosperous We have a custom, yet in mode, that when one sneezes, everyone pulls off his hat and bows, and cries “God bless ye Sir.” – John Evelyn, Remains of Gentilism, 1688.

DEANERY NEWS FOR NOVEMBER

We were all deeply saddened to hear that Tony Adams passed to glory on October 2nd and is now, in Ele's words, 'safe in the arms of his beloved Saviour, no doubt rejoicing'!

He, with Ele alongside him, had the most wonderful ministry right up until his death: to visit him was to be truly blessed, and we thank God for the wonderful gift of Tony that Deanery enjoyed for many years. As I write, the funeral has yet to happen, but Ele describes it as both a service of thanksgiving for Tony's life, and a celebration of God's love for each one of us. We pray that Ele and the family will know the full depth of that love in the weeks and months to come.

In Tredington, in the chancel of St. Gregory's Church, Gordon Kuhrt is concluding series of Talks on the Bible with 'How is the Bible to be used?' on Wednesday, November 9th at 7.30pm.

Finally, Gordon has written and published a little book about pain and disability in children and the big questions it poses, called 'Life isn't always easy'. Gordon hopes it will be of use to families, schools, youth groups and discussion groups. Do contact him for further details:

VICARAGE NOTES

Dear friends,

Pig Roast and Skittles

That was a jolly good evening and thanks go to the Lilian and the Social and Fund Raising Committee for organising the whole occasion! It was lovely to see a good crowd of folk.

Church Repairs

Several people saw the work in action on the roof and walls. Loose and ill-fitting hoppers had been causing the damp in the upper internal walls, and these have now been correctly fixed. Other work included some re-pointing, nave roof repairs and attention to the gutters and downpipes. It will take a year for the walls to dry out so internal decoration will have to wait. Pointing to the upper east wall is next on the agenda, and the architect recommends looking at re-roofing the nave during the coming quinquennium, which would be a major project involving English Heritage!

November – the month of memories

Armistice Day (11th) and Remembrance Sunday provide the opportunity to reflect upon the past and to remember those who have given, and continue to give, their lives in the service of this country. We shall of course be praying for the peace of our world.

November 1st (All Saints) and the 2nd (All Souls) also provide time for reflection upon the past and to remember and give thanks for those special to us who have died over the years. There is a special quiet communion at 9.30am on Wed. 2nd at Brailes and if you would like the name of a loved one remembered please let me know a day or two beforehand.

God bless,

Nicholas Morgan 01608 685230

MORE DEANERY NEWS

At the Deanery Synod on 11th October, we discussed the proposed legislation which would permit the ordination of women as bishops. I am really grateful to all those who took part in the debate; this is for many a sensitive issue, and there was much graciousness and understanding of each other's views. I am particularly to Ann Gregory, who came down from Tile Hill in Coventry to take part. The measure to allow women to become bishops, with provision for those who disagree, was passed, with 26 votes for and 5 against. This is something which could easily cause division, yet I sense a powerful yearning simply to get on with the work of the Gospel. Thank you to all those who took part.

VILLAGE HALL TAPAS EVENING

Around 40 Oxhillians enjoyed homely hospitality in 9 different houses in the village during the Village Hall Tapas Safari Night on Saturday, 24 September. The evening started in rue Spanish style with marvellous Margaritas’ and super Sangrias, then there were appealing appetisers, fragrant fish fantasies and mighty meaty morsels on offer plus wonderful wines and they were gratefully consumed by the travelling ‘tourists’. On return to the Village Hall for delicious deserts, the chat was all about the great night that was had by all.

OXHILL GARDEN CLUB

Would any of us ever have believed that there are in the region of 2,700 species of mushrooms? I certainly hadn't realised we had so many different kinds. Christopher Scotter, suffering from a very recent operation to pin his leg following an accident, still kindly came along to give us a fascinating talk on his vastly researched knowledge of mushrooms and toadstools. Christopher's slides were enormously colourful and varied - tall ones, fat stubby ones, thin stemmed rounded or flat tops, spotted, plain, growing from tree barks or hiding in grassland. The scope was wide. The variety of edible and deadly fungi are the stuff of dreams, be they culinary or potential horror stories. He suggested that should we find any mushrooms in a woodland setting we would be very well advised to avoid them at all cost due to the fact that there is a highly deadly variety that an untrained eye would not recognise. There is no known antidote for this mushroom so stick to the field varieties. The Vikings ingested a variety before battle to improve their skills, some are known as magic mushrooms, others are hallucinogenic, there are varieties that are hot or have antifreeze in them, the honey fungus can kill trees, the boletus mushroom is good for soups. Some mushrooms have gills under their caps others appear solid but all are almost pure protein. It is perhaps a sad reflection on the English that our interest in the widely varied delicacies of the mushroom are remarkably similar to our ignorance in relation to seafood where, if it isn't battered, it probably isn't edible.

The photographic competition was won by Pauline Wyatt.

WOT2GROW COMMUNITY ORCHARD

September was a busy month so thanks to members and friends for much hard work over several weekends.

We completed the turf lifting and digging for the new bushes and canes. The soil was very dry and hard so a fork/pick axe combination was needed to loosen the soil and break up the pan followed by a rotivator to break up the soil to a fine tilth ready for planting.

Much weeding was done - never completed! - especially an attack on the dandelions by one of our members.... The tree positions have been marked out in anticipation of getting a sub-soiler in to break up the pan prior to planting in December.

We had a fascinating training session with John Edgeley , a great teacher, who took us through every step demonstrating then letting us try for ourselves. Holes were dug for posts at either end of the raspberry rows and intermediate poles at 10m intervals, hard work even with the help of a "post slammer" or bonker as John called it! Wires were then threaded through staples and finished off with gripples for tensioning. John then explained the methods and timing of pruning all the canes and bushes.

On leaving it really looked like a proper orchard with the initial management of the canes installed and a wonderful fence that defines the area that is The Orchard. Mike Smith did the stock proof fencing along with the pipes to get mains water onto the site after Severn Trent complete their bit.

Do visit the orchard and see how much we have progressed but be careful about the training wires stretched between the posts.

OWLS PHOTOGRAPHIC AND ART COMPETITION

The 2011 OWL's photographic competition was a great success with everyone who came also enjoying cream teas and a chat. The standard of photographs seems to improve year on year and Suzanna McKail again said how difficult it was to judge the winners. Josh Cooper won the Oxhill category with a snowy scene taken of the track leading past Sylvia's house (featured in this year's calendar) while Ed Bracher's beagles won the British section. Rosie and Millie Bracher won the children's sections – well done that family. Several photos won a second or third place and many earned a 'highly commended' so there will be no shortage of material for the 2013 calendar.

This year there was an art/craft section for which there were several lovely children's entries and Ailie MacDonald won that with her blue feathered owl. Grenville's painted trio of fieldfares won the adult section. Hopefully we'll get more entries for this next year (come on all you artists!).

Have a look at more pictures on the OWLS website (www.oxhill-owls.org.uk).
